MID-AMERICA THEATRE CONFERENCE CONVENTION III

In conjunction with the
ASSOCIATION OF KANSAS THEATRE
Ramada Inn Central, Kansas City, Missouri
MARCH 19, 20, 21, 1982

CONFERENCE PROGRAM

The third convention of the Mid-America Theatre Conference truly reflects its title -- STRUCTURES OF EXCELLENCE -- with its scheduled program. For the second year a stimulating history symposium is planned. The 1982 symposium entitled THE MAKERS OF MODERN THEATRE features panelists from Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota and Missouri presenting papers on Russian, Scandinavian and German Theatre. Workshops and discussion panels will be offered in auditioning, casting, acting, decision-making, computers, marketing and design. A performance of MACBETH by the Missouri Repertory Theatre is in the program. Plus we will all have a chance to catch up on news and events in business meetings, mixers and banquets. In short, the convention has something for the entire membership regardless of their area of special interest.

Such a divergent program reflects the various elements necessary for theatre excellence. The program also acknowledges a pragmatic evaluation of future needs during the unpredictable 80's. The convention as a whole addresses the rising problem of an increase in the desire to share information versus a decrease in the funds available to do so by coordinating two conventions together to save both time and resources. The year's MATC Convention will be held jointly with the Association of Kansas Theatres Conference -- hopefully this combination will create a mutually beneficial experience for all and act as a symbol of organizational responsiveness to timely needs.

Speaking for the MATC Regional Council, I believe that this Convention will be a rewarding experience -- one in which we can all take pride.

—Kent Neely, Chief Regional Officer, Region V.
